CLAUDE

(to the audience)

September 16th. After just five days, they just ran the Zamboni over the ice. And played hockey.

With the Plane People gone, I tell my staff, “Go home. Get some sleep.” We were all exhausted — just spent — most of us have been up for five days straight working. But somehow I can’t sleep, so I sit down and turn on the television. And I just start crying. I hadn’t let myself cry the whole time.
